11/9 WASHINGTON vs. SAN JOSE STATE Huskies Play First of Five Straight at Home

THE GAME: The Washington football team (0-1), fresh from a last-second, heart-breaking 31-29 loss at Michigan last week, looks to rebound this Saturday when San Jose State (1-0) comes to Husky Stadium for the first of a nearly unprecedented five consecutive home games. After the Spartans visit, the Huskies take a week off before playing host to Wyoming, Idaho, California and Arizona in their first five-game homestand in more than 70 years. This week's rankings have yet to be released.

THE SERIES: Washington has won all seven of its games vs. San Jose State in a series that dates back to the 1958 season. All seven UW-SJSU games have taken place at Husky Stadium. In '58, the Huskies handed the Spartans a 14-6 loss. The two teams wouldn't face each other again until 1977, when a Rose Bowl-bound Husky team beat SJSU, 24-3. In 1988, the Huskies took a 28-0 lead before Johnny Johnson and the Spartans roared back to go in front, 31-28 in the fourth quarter. However, UW tailback Tony Covington scored from two yards out with 1:31 remaining to win the game 35-31. Johnson rushed for 217 yards, including a 64-yard TD, and also caught a 27-yard scoring pass. SJSU put another scare into the Huskies in 1990's season opener. State tied the game at 10-10 in the third quarter before a Mike Dodd field goal and a Beno Bryant 52-yard punt return put the Huskies in front. Bobby Blackmon's 19-yard TD reception drew San Jose within three for the final score of 20-17. In 1993, the Huskies posted their 16th straight home victory, cruising to a 52-17 win over Jeff Garcia's Spartans. The UW rushed for 268 yards, including 118 from Napoleon Kaufman. Kaufman was at it again the following year when he rushed for a career-best 254 yards, including a 91-yard TD on the UW's first offensive play of the game. That run was the second longest in UW history. The game was nonetheless tied at 14-14 at half, but a late TD catch by Eric Bjornson and a 76-yard Kaufman TD closed it out with a 34-20 final score. In 1996, Corey Dillon had perhaps the best offensive quarter in football history when he rushed for 222 yards and caught an 83-yard TD pass all in the opening period. The 222 rush yards in a quarter and 305 all-purpose yards in a quarter are still NCAA records. The Huskies won the game, 53-10, and finished with a school-record 559 rushing yards. Three Huskies – Dillon (222 yards), Terry Hollimon (148) and Maurice Shaw (101) – rushed for 100 yards in the game.

HOME WINNING STREAK: Washington enters Saturday's game with the longest active home winning streak in the Pac-10 Conference at 14 games (Nebraska's 23-game home win streak is the nation's longest). The last time the Huskies lost a home game was a 28-7 defeat at the hands of Arizona State Oct. 16, 1999. The Dawgs won their remaining two home games that year, and won all six games at Husky Stadium in each of the last two years. This year, the Husky schedule includes seven home games, including five in a row in the early part of the season. The modern Husky record for consecutive home wins is 17, set between 1991 and 1993, so if the Huskies can win their first four home games, they'll set a new modern school record. Last year, Oregon ran its home win streak to 23 games before losing to Stanford at Autzen Stadium. The Pac-10 record for home win streak is 26 (California, 1919-23). The Huskies' all-time record is 44 straight home wins, set from 1908 to 1917 (mostly prior to the founding of the conference), in the midst of the UW's 63-game overall unbeaten streak, still an NCAA record. The 44-game home win streak was broken by a 0-0 tie with Oregon State in 1917, but the UW went on to win six more home games after that, extending their home unbeaten streak to 51 games. The 44-game home winning streak is still the sixth-longest in NCAA history.

TELEVISION: The Washington-San Jose State game will not air anywhere on live television. However, the game will air on tape delay on Fox Sports in the Northwest with David Locke and former Husky quarterback Sonny Sixkiller calling the action. The replay will air Sunday at 5:00 p.m. A new show, "The Washington Football Experience" will air for the each Thursday during the season on Fox Sports. The new program is an up-close look at each Husky game, with one-on-one player interviews and sideline photography.

RADIO: The Husky Sports Network, with its flagship station KJR 950-AM, will carry the live broadcast of every football game to 10 different states on 28 different radio stations. Bob Rondeau (play-by-play), Chuck Nelson (color) and Bill Swartz (sidelines) provide the call.

COACHING STAFF: Seven of nine members of Washington's 2001 assistant coaching staff return for 2002. Six of the nine current assistants have been on the UW staff since Rick Neuheisel's arrival prior to the 1999 season. However, despite having seven of nine assistant coaches back, there has been a little shuffling in the position assignments. The two coaches who left – inside linebackers coach Tom Williams to Stanford and running backs coach Tony Alford to Iowa State – have been replaced by newcomers Cornell Jackson and Bobby Kennedy. Jackson will coach the inside linebackers in a direct switch for Williams, but Kennedy will serve as wide receivers coach, overseeing a position that was coached by a graduate assistant last year. Veteran coach Chuck Heater moves from cornerbacks to running backs coach while Bobby Hauck will expand his duties from safeties to all the defensive backs. The UW coaching staff includes seven coaches that have served as coordinators and two (Keith Gilbertson and Steve Axman) that have been head coaches. Gilbertson served as the head man at Idaho (1986-88) and California (1992-95) while Axman was the coach at Northern Arizona from 1990 to 1997. Axman also once served as offensive coordinator at UCLA. Defensive coordinator Tim Hundley has been a coordinator at Oregon State and Idaho while defensive line coach Randy Hart was a coordinator at UW from 1995-98. Hauck headed up the special teams at Colorado before coming to Seattle while Heater was the defensive coordinator at Colorado State (1991-92). Offensive line coach Brent Myers was offensive coordinator at Northern Arizona under Axman and spent two seasons as coordinator at Boise State.

THE GAs: The Huskies added two new graduate assistant coaches to the staff this year, both with names that will be familiar to Seattle-area football fans. Luther Carr III will assist on offense while Ty Gregorak is the defensive graduate assistant. Carr was head coach at Seattle's Garfield High the last four seasons and is the son of Luther Carr II, who was a standout Husky player in the late 1950s. Two of Carr's uncles, Gary and Dave, also earned varsity letters at Washington, in football and basketball, respectively. Gregorak, who prepped at West Valley High in Spokane, Wash., earned three letters as a linebacker at Colorado, playing two varsity seasons under Rick Neuheisel in Boulder. A 2000 Big 12 All-Academic selection, Gregorak retired from playing prior to his senior season due to shoulder and knee injuries. As a junior in 2000, he started eight games and finished fourth on the team in tackles.

DILLON'S BIG DAY: Probably the most memorable moment of the Huskies' all-time series vs. San Jose State came in the teams' last meeting on Nov. 16, 1996, when junior tailback Corey Dillon ran for 222 yards in the first quarter. That day, Dillon set new NCAA records for rushing yards in a quarter and all-purpose yards (305) in a quarter. Both marks still stand today. Dillon, who took himself out of the game after the opening period, also broke UW single-season records for rushing yards, all-purpose yards, rushing TDs and total TDs that day. In the first quarter, he rushed for touchdowns of four, 48 and 78 yards before catching a screen pass from Brock Huard and running it in from 83 yards out. That day, the Huskies broke school records for total offense (734 yards), rushing yards (559), most rushing yards per attempt (9.0) and had three 100-yard rushers for the only time in school history. Dillon, who begins his sixth year with the Cincinnati Bengals this fall, also holds the NFL single-game rushing record (278 yards) as well as the NFL rookie single-game rushing mark (246).

HUSKIES vs. WAC TEAMS: The Huskies have played more games against San Jose State (seven games) than against the other nine current members of the Western Athletic Conference, combined. Washington has never played against current WAC members Boise State, Louisiana Tech, Southern Methodist or Tulsa and have six games against the remaining WAC teams. The Huskies are 7-0 vs. San Jose State, 1-0 vs. Fresno State (49-14 in 1979), 1-1 vs. Hawaii (1938 win and 1973 loss), 1-0 vs. Nevada (2-0 in 1903), 0-0-1 vs. Rice (35-35 tie in 1968) and 1-0 vs. Texas-El Paso (55-0 in 1982). Combined, Washington boasts a 11-1-1 all-time record vs. the current Western Athletic Conference.

WASHINGTON-SAN JOSE STATE TIES: Members of the Washington and San Jose State rosters and coaching staffs haven't crossed paths very often. None of the members of San Jose State's coaching staff have ever been associated with any of the Husky coaches. Spartans defensive coordinator Ronnie Lee played at Washington State (1985-88) and running backs coach Charles Nash at Arizona (1974-76), but that's as close as it comes. Washington's roster includes only four players from the Bay Area – Jafar Williams, Domyinc Shaw and Matt Fountaine from Oakland and Rob Meadow from San Francisco – though none are from the South Bay/San Jose area. San Jose State doesn't have any players from the state of Washington, though freshman DB Trestin George attended the same high school (St. Mary's) as Husky senior Jafar Williams.

MICHIGAN REDUX: Washington lost its season opener at Michigan, 31-29, on a Philip Brabbs 44-yard field goal as time expired. The crowd of 111,491 – largest ever to witness a UW football game – was treated to a back-and-forth classic as the lead changed six times in the second half. The Huskies trailed 14-0 after two long scores by the Wolverines, a 57-yard run by Chris Perry and a 45-yard pass from John Navarre to Braylon Edwards. The Huskies, however closed to within a point at halftime as Cody Pickett hit tight end Kevin Ware with a three-yard pass (the PAT failed) and Rich Alexis ran in a score from six yards out. In the third quarter, the Huskies took their first lead when Pickett threw into double coverage, but Charles Frederick came up with the ball for a 51-yard score. After Perry's two-yard run put the Wolverines back on top, 21-20, John Anderson hit a 30-yard field goal to give the Huskies a 23-21 edge. Perry scored his third of the day, from three yards out, in the fourth period to put his team in front once again, 28-23, but Alexis carried the ball to the six on a 59-yard run before completing the drive with a one-yard score. The Huskies' try for two points failed, but the Huskies looked to have the game in hand when backup kicker Troy Nienberg missed a 27-yard field goal with 1:24 left. The Wolverines, however, got the ball back, converted on a fourth-and-two and were helped along when, on third-and-10 with less than 10 seconds to go, the Huskies were penalized for having 12 men on the field. The penalty moved the ball to the 27-yard line, setting up Brabbs' heroics.

HOME OPENERS: The Huskies are 81-24-5 in home openers (whether the first game of the season or not), a percentage of .759. That mark includes a 28-game streak of home opener wins that ran from 1908 to 1935. Before falling to Air Force in the 1999 home opener, Washington had won 13 straight since falling to Oklahoma State on Sept. 7, 1985. Last year, the Huskies opened vs. No. 10 Michigan, beating the Wolverines, 23-18, in a mild upset. Husky coach Rick Neuheisel is 2-1 in season openers, having lost to Air Force in '99 in his home coaching debut. His Huskies beat Idaho in the 2000 opener before last season's win over Michigan.

TEAM NOTES

RANKED-WINS STREAK: Washington's upset of 11th-ranked Michigan in the last season's opener marked the 13th straight year the Huskies have defeated an opponent ranked in the Associated Press poll. After a loss at Michigan this season, the Huskies are still in search of a win over a ranked foe this year. Washington has defeated an AP-ranked team in 24 of its last 25 seasons prior to 2002. The only break in the streak came in 1988 when the Huskies played only two games against nationally-ranked foes — UCLA (No. 2) and USC (No. 3), losing both of those games.

TO BE CONTINUED: Washington's 2002 two-deep is both young and experienced, which bodes well not just for 2002, but for 2003 as well. Just nine of the 46 players on Washington's season-opening offensive and defensive depth charts (including co-No. 2s) are seniors, meaning that barring unexpected attrition, 37 of Washington's top 46 offensive and defensive players will return for the 2003 season, including 20 of 25 listed starters (includes co-starters). The list includes nine of 10 offensive linemen (with senior guard Elliott Zajac the lone senior), all six defensive linemen, and all eight members of the secondary, not to mention skill-position standouts Cody Pickett, Reggie Williams and Rich Alexis. Youth, however, does not necessarily equal inexperience. Of those 37 underclassmen, 27 already boast at least one letter, and 17 have started at least one game at Washington.

LOSING ON THE LAST PLAY: While the Huskies have been beaten in recent years on the last play from scrimmage in a game (Robert Nycz's field goal in a 45-42 loss in 1996 and Ortege Jenkins' "Leap by the Lake" in a 1998 Arizona win, to name two), Saturday's loss at Michigan marked the first time in nearly 33 years that Huskies had lost with 0:00 remaining on the clock. In the aforementioned ASU and Arizona games, as well as others in the last few decades, there were still several seconds left on the clock after the winning score. So, the last time that Washington lost a game on the final play was the Oct. 18, 1969, Husky Stadium loss to Oregon State, when Steve Endicott hit Jeff Kolberg with a 49-yard pass on the game's final play, leading OSU to a 10-6 win.

.500 OR BETTER SEASONS: With a winning season once again in 2001, last year the Huskies played their 25th consecutive non-losing season. The last time that Washington finished below .500 was 1976, when the Dawgs went 5-6. Since then, the Huskies are 207-81-3 (.719) overall. The Huskies' 25-season streak of non-losing seasons is the 14th longest in NCAA history (tied with Florida State's current streak) and the fourth longest current streak. Here are the longest streaks currently running:

40 seasons	Nebraska	1962-2001
34 seasons	Michigan	1968-2001
27 seasons	Brigham Young	1974-2001
25 seasons	Washington	1977-2001
25 seasons	Florida State	1977-2001

DECADE AFTER DECADE: Washington has won a conference title and a trip to the Rose Bowl in each of the last nine decades, dating back to the 1920s when Washington won the berth in 1923 and 1925. In the 1930s, the Dawgs won the '36 title. In the '40s, Washington earned the trip in 1943 and then barely slipped in under the wire in the 1950s, winning the 1959 crown. The Huskies won two Rose Bowl berths in the 1960s -- 1960 and 1963 -- and one in the 1970s (1977). Titles in 1980 and 1982 did it for that decade and three straight trips to Pasadena to begin the 1990s covered that 10-year span. Now in the 2000s, UW has become the first and only team to earn Rose Bowl berths in nine straight decades. USC has the chance, over the next eight years, to equal the Huskies if it wins the title sometime this decade.

THE SHUTOUT STREAK: Washington's loss to Michigan marked the 241st consecutive game in which Washington has not been shut out. That's the best streak among Pac-10 schools. BYU has the nation's longest streak at 338 games (NCAA record), while Texas is second with 250 games. The last opponent to hold the Huskies scoreless was UCLA (31-0) on Nov. 7, 1981. Washington has played 160 Pac-10 games since then without a shutout — the second best current streak among Pac-10 schools.

Team	All Games	Pac-10 Games
Washington	241	160
Washington State	199	204
Oregon	193	142
Arizona	123	85
Arizona State	75	52
Stanford	64	92
USC	50	38
Oregon State	47	34
California	31	60
UCLA	1	1

HOME vs. NON CONFERENCE: Washington has been very tough to beat in home, non-conference game over the last couple of decades or so. Going back to (and including) the 1981 season, the Huskies have posted a 40-5 record against non-Pac-10 foes in Husky Stadium. Those five losses have come to Air Force (1999), Nebraska (1997), Notre Dame (1995), Colorado (1989) and Oklahoma State (1985). The wins during that stretch include victories over No. 11 Michigan last year, No. 4 Miami in 2000, and No. 12 Nebraska in 1992, to name just three. Coach Rick Neuheisel is 5-1 in such games, claiming the wins over Michigan last season and Miami in 2000, with the lone loss coming in his first home game as Husky coach vs. Air Force in 1999.

FINISHING FIRST OR SECOND: With its second-place finish in the Pac-10 last season, Washington has now finished either first or second in the conference (including ties) in 18 of the last 25 seasons, dating back to a fourth-place finish in 1976. Over that span, Washington has won the championship (outright or shared) eight times — 1977, 1980, 1981, 1990, 1991, 1992, 1995 and 2000 — while finishing second 10 other times.

LAST-SECOND MAGIC: Four of Washington's six Pac-10 victories last season came down to the wire. The Huskies beat California by three points (31-28), USC by three (27-24), Arizona by three (31-28) and Arizona State by two (33-31). Washington trailed in the fourth quarter in each of those games but came back to win. In both the USC and the Arizona State games, Washington got a field goal from John Anderson with no time left on the clock to get the victory. The Huskies hadn't previously won a game on the final play since Chuck Nelson kicked a field goal to beat Stanford, 27-24, in 1980. In the win over Arizona, quarterback Cody Pickett closed out a record-setting passing day by scoring on a three-yard run with only 13 seconds remaining. Against ASU, the Huskies took the ball on their own 10-yard line and used up the final 7:12 of the game, driving for the winning field goal in 18 plays. The Cal win wasn't nearly so close, by comparison. The Huskies entered the fourth quarter trailing 21-17, but scored two touchdowns to take a 31-21 lead before Cal scored to close the gap with 3:23 remaining. The win over Stanford was even more comfortable by comparison. However, the score was tied at 28-28 until Willie Hurst scored with 3:48 left in the game to give the Huskies a lead. Hurst tacked on the final TD with only four seconds on the clock.

TEAM NOTES

WINNING THE CLOSE ONES: In 37 games under coach Rick Neuheisel, the winning margin (for either side) has been seven points or fewer 21 times. In those 21 games decided by a touchdown or less, Washington is 15-6 and had won 10 straight before falling to Texas, 47-43 in last year's Holiday Bowl. TIME OF POSSESSION A KEY?: Earlier in Rick Neuheisel's Husky career, it became apparent that whenever Washington possessed the ball more than its opponent, it always won the game. In fact, the Huskies won its first 18 such games under Neuheisel. That streak was broken last Oct. 13 at UCLA when the Huskies lost 35-13 despite having the ball 1:28 more than UCLA. In the season opening loss at Michigan, the Huskies had the ball nearly seven and a half minutes more than the Wolverines, but lost 31-29, only the third time in Neuheisel's tenure that the Huskies lost a game after winning the time of possession. The Huskies led the Pac-10 in time of possession in 1999 (32:57), finished a narrow second in 2000 (31:47 per game, eight fewer seconds per game than Oregon) and third in 2001 (30:53). In '99, Washington won all six games in which it held the time of possession advantage and lost five of the six games in which it did not. In 2000, the Huskies won the TOP battle in nine of 12 games, and won all nine. Oregon won the TOP and the game while the Huskies bucked the trend vs. Stanford and Arizona, losing the TOP but winning the games. Since the UCLA game, Washington also lost the Miami game despite winning TOP. To break it down, UW is 21-3 under Neuheisel when it has won the time of possession stat, and 5-8 when it hasn't. Here's a breakdown of the games over the last four years in which Washington has won the TOP:

1999 Opponent	UW TOP	Opp. TOP	Diff.	Result

TEAM NOTES

FOURTH-QUARTER COMEBACKS: Under Rick Neuheisel, Washington has had to come from behind in 19 of its 26 wins. That total includes eight such wins in 2000 and six in 2001. Of those 19 come-from-behind wins, Washington has trailed in the fourth quarter and won 13 times, including five times last year. In last year's Arizona win, the Huskies took the lead in the fourth, then gave it up again before taking it back for good on their last drive. Here's a breakdown of the Huskies' fourth-quarter comebacks in the last three seasons:

Date	Opponent	Score in 4th Quarter	Final Score
9/25/99	Colorado	21-17, Buffaloes	31-24, Huskies
10/23/99	at California	24-17, Bears	31-27, Huskies

TOP 15 IN THE 21ST CENTURY: While the new century is only two seasons old (2000-2001), the NCAA has already compiled the top football records in the 2000s, and Washington ranks No. 10 on that list. Michigan, incidentally, ranks No. 16 (tied) with a 21st century record of 17-7 (.708). Here are the top 15 winningest teams in the 2000s, by winning percentage, entering the season:

1. Miami 24-1 .958
2. Oklahoma 24-2 .923
3. Oregon 21-3 .875
4. Toledo 20-3 .870
5. Nebraska 22-4 .840
6. Virginia Tech 19-4 .826
7. Florida 20-5 .800
- Louisville 20-5 .800
- Texas 20-5 .800
10. Washington 19-5 .792
11. Florida State 19-6 .760
- Tennessee 19-6 .760
13. Boise State 19-7 .731
14. Marshall 19-7 .731
15. LSU 18-7 .720

TOP 25 STREAK: The Huskies, who opened the 2000 season ranked No. 14 in the nation, haven't been ranked out of the Associated Press' top 25 since the end of the 1999 season. The game vs. San Jose State will mark the 26th straight game that the Huskies have entered ranked in the top 25. Washington has been ranked in the top 10 heading into nine of those games, including eight during the 2000 season.

THE 100-YARD FACTOR: Since the 1947 season, Washington is 153-35-3 (.809) when a Husky player rushes for 100 yards in a game. Last year, Washington had a 100-yard rusher only four times (all by then-senior Willie Hurst). The Huskies went 3-1 in those four games, beating USC, Arizona State and Stanford and losing to Texas in the Holiday Bowl.

HISTORY LESSON: Successfully rushing the football and winning go hand-in-hand for the Huskies. Since 1990, Washington has rushed for 200 yards in a game 56 times. The Huskies' record stands at 51-4-1 (.920) in those contests. Since the 1995 season, Washington is 26-1-1 (.946) when rushing for 200 yards.

PLAYING AT HOME: The Huskies finished the home slate with a spotless 6-0 record in 2001, marking the 13th time ever and the sixth time in the last 10 seasons that the Dawgs have played perfect at home (1991, 1992, 1994, 1996, 2000). Washington has won 62 of its last 74 (.845) games at Husky Stadium with one tie (62-11-1). Since 1980, the Huskies stand 110-23-2 (.822) at home. Since 1990, the Huskies are 41-7-1 (.847) at Husky Stadium vs. Pac-10 opponents.

HISTORIC HUSKY STADIUM: The 2002 season will mark the 83rd season of play in Husky Stadium. Original construction on the facility was completed in 1920 when Washington played one game in the new campus facility. Thanks to several major renovations, Husky Stadium's seating capacity has increased to its current total of 72,500. That makes Husky Stadium the 24th-largest college football venue in the nation. It is the 20th-largest on-campus facility in the country. UW's all-time record in Husky Stadium currently stands at 327-133-21 (.702).

PLAYER NOTES

PICKETT'S CHARGE: With the better part of two years remaining in his college career, junior quarterback Cody Pickett has already begun his assault on the Husky record books. Last year, Pickett broke four UW records, most significantly the single-game passing yardage mark. In a 31-28 win over Arizona (in which Pickett also ran in the winning touchdown with 13 seconds left), he broke Cary Conklin's 1989 record of 428 passing yards in a game with 455, despite a separated right (throwing) shoulder suffered two weeks earlier vs. USC. Pickett also broke the UW single-season record for passing yards per game (240.3), passing yards by a sophomore (2,403) and 50-plus yard passes in a season (five). Here's a rundown of records set by Pickett in 2001, as well as other top-10 finishes:

Category	Total	Place
Passing Yards Per Game	240.3	1st
Passing Yards in a Game	455	1st
Passing Yards by a Sophomore	2,403	1st
50-Plus Yard Passes in a Season	5	1st
Total Offense per Game	246.3	2nd
Total Offense in a Game	473	2nd
Passing Yards in a Season	2,403	3rd
Passing Yards per Attempts	7.98	4th
Total Offense in a Season	2,463	5th
Total Offense per Attempt	6.41	8th

PICKETT EYES CAREER TOP-10S: It won't happen this week, or even in the next few, but Cody Pickett will break onto several UW passing career top-10s at some point this season. With 2,724 career passing yards, Pickett needs 553 yards to catch Warren Moon (3,277) for the 10th spot. He also needs only 54 more completions and 144 attempts to make the top 10 in those two categories. His career mark of 13.8 yards per completion ranks No. 4 and his 209.5 yards per game (14 games) would already rank No. 1 in school history, except that there's an 18-game minimum. His seven career 200-yard passing days already rank him No. 8 (tied) in UW history and his six 50-plus-yard passes rank fourth, three back of Damon Huard's record of nine.

PICKETT'S 300-YARD GAMES: With nearly two seasons yet to play, Cody Pickett is already only one game short of the Huskies' record for most career 300-yard passing games. With three career 300-yard games (455 last year vs. Arizona, 371 last year vs. WSU and 318 last Saturday at Michigan), he is only one 300-yard game short of Brock Huard's career record of four. Aside from Pickett, three other Huskies have compiled three 300-yard games in a career: Cary Conklin, Sonny Sixkiller and Chris Rowland.

CODY'S COURAGE: After sitting out the previous game and a half with a separated shoulder, then-sophomore quarterback Cody Pickett had the most prolific passing day in UW history in the Huskies' 31-28 win over Arizona. But, not only did Pickett break the school passing yards record with 455, he also broke tackles on a three-yard run to score the game's winning touchdown with 13 seconds left. His 455 yards broke the school record of 428, set by Cary Conklin vs. Arizona State in 1989. His 49 attempts and 29 completions marked the highest such totals in the Pac-10 last season and the 29 completions were fifth-most in Husky history. Pickett was named Pac-10 and national Player of the Week.

CODY'S BOMBS: With three passes of over 70 yards in 2001 (78 to Paul Arnold, 75 to Patrick Reddick, 74 to Reggie Williams), Cody Pickett is the only Husky QB ever to throw three 70-plus-yard passes in a career. Only Damon Huard, Tom Porras and Billy Joe Hobert had ever thrown two 70-yard passes.

BIG-PLAY PAUL: Washington senior receiver Paul Arnold, who switched from tailback to receiver prior to the 2001 season, has shown amazing versatility not only through his career, but in 2001 as well. Arnold, who caught the Huskies' first three passing TDs last year, had previously been a regular on the kickoff return team (he had a 100-yard kickoff return in 1999) and had also been the starting tailback. He has scored touchdowns as a running back, a receiver and on special teams. Despite starting at receiver last year, Arnold took several snaps at tailback during the Huskies' win at California, helping to fill in for an injury-depleted tailbacks corps. Despite playing some at tailback, he nonetheless led the Huskies with five catches for 116 yards and two touchdowns. He finished 2001 with four catches of over 40 yards, three for touchdowns. His 78-yard reception vs. Arizona was eighth (tied) in UW history. Arnold finished the year second on the team with both 43 receptions and 649 yards.

AFRO-PUFFS PREVAIL: Paul Arnold, the Huskies' senior receiver, has long been known for his ever-changing hair styles. This fall, fans who went to www.gohuskies.com were given the opportunity to choose which photo of Arnold would run in the UW's game program. The winner, by a long stretch, was the style Paul dubbed "Afro-Puffs," which prevailed over braids and a more traditional afro. More than 5,000 fans voted. Here are the final vote totals:

Afro-Puffs: 61% Afro: 21% Braids: 18%

REGGIE PASSES 1,000-YARD MARK: Sophomore wide receiver Reggie Williams, only one game into his sophomore season, has already surpassed 1,000 yards in career receiving yards. With 72 yards last week vs. Michigan, he has 1,045 in his career. His 1,045 yards leave him 348 yards short of reaching the No. 10 spot on the UW career receiving yards list, a position currently held by Darryl Franklin (1,393). While it's still a distant mark, Williams needs 1,049 yards to become the Huskies' all-time receiving yards leader. Mario Bailey (1988-91) holds that record with 2,093 yards. Williams' per-game average of 87.1 yards over his career would rank him No. 1 in Husky history if he'd reached the requisite 18 career games by now. The UW career per-game yardage record is 65.9 (Brian Slater, 1985-88).

WILLIAMS TOPS THE LIST: Last year, wide receiver Reggie Williams became easily the No. 1 freshman receiver in UW history in terms of yards and receptions. With 973 yards (88.5 per game), Williams ranked third in the Pac-10 and 23rd in the nation (third among freshmen) in receiving yards per game. Williams easily surpassed Chris Juergens as the No. 1 freshman receiver in school history, more than doubling Juergens' freshman yardage 1998 record. With a team-high 55 receptions, he broke the UW freshman record for receptions in a season, set by Paul Skansi in 1979. Here are the top-five true freshmen wide receivers in UW history, based on yards:

Rank	Player (Year)	Rec. Yards
1.	Reggie Williams (2001)	973
2.	Chris Juergens (1998)	414
3.	Jason Shelley (1992)	382
4.	Paul Skansi (1979)	378
5.	Scott Phillips (1973)	369

PLAYER NOTES

RECORD-SETTING REGGIE: Last year, UW wide receiver Reggie Williams became the first Husky ever to start the first game of his freshman season, and got his career off to a bang. Not only did he set four UW and Pac-10 records, but he had some of the more notable receiving days in recent UW history. In the first game of his career, the season opener vs. Michigan, he caught four balls for 134 yards. Against Washington State, he posted an 11-catch, 203-yard day, setting Apple Cup records in both categories. He went on to be named co-Freshman of the Year in the Pac-10 and was a Freshman All-American. Here are the four UW and Pac-10 freshman records he set:

Williams' UW and Pac-10 Freshman Records

Single-Season Receiving Yards	973
Single-Season Receptions	55
Single-Game Receiving Yards	203
Single-Game Receptions	11

REGGIE'S BIG DEBUT: Wide receiver Reggie Williams put on a show in the first game of his college career last season in the season opener vs. Michigan. The former Lakes High star started the game and finished with 134 yards on four receptions, including a 74-yard catch that probably would have resulted in an 80-yard TD had he not lost a shoe. Williams set a UW freshman record for receiving yardage in a game with his 134 (he broke it later in the year vs. WSU) and had more receiving yards than any Husky since Andre DeSaussure had 167 yards in the 1998 Oregon State game. The 74-yard catch was the second-longest non-scoring reception in Husky history, the longest-ever reception by a freshman and the 13th longest reception (overall) in UW lore. Here's a look at what the top five Husky receivers of all-time (in terms of career catches) did in their first game for the UW, along with Williams' numbers:

Player	Date of Debut	Rec-Yds-TD	Opponent	Result
Paul Skansi	9/29/79	5-58-1	Fresno St.	W, 49-14
Mario Bailey	10/29/88	1-7-0	Stanford	W, 28-25
Jerome Pathon	9/2/95	1-13-0	Arizona St.	W, 23-20
Scott Phillips	9/15/73	2-30-0	Hawaii	L, 10-7
Lonzell Hill	9/10/83	1-7-0	at Northwestern	W, 34-0
Reggie Williams	9/8/01	4-134-0	Michigan	W, 23-18

FIRST FOR A FRESHMAN: By starting the season-opening Michigan game last season, receiver Reggie Williams became the first true freshman in Washington history (at least since the restoration of freshman eligibility in the early 1970s) to start in his first-ever college game. The closest that anyone had ever come was 2001 senior Todd Elstrom, who got a start in his second career game (1998). Former UW offensive lineman Chad Ward started in his third game and then never missed a start from then on. Three other Huskies started the fourth game of their career. Here's a list of early starters:

2001	WR Reggie Williams	1st game	Michigan
1998	WR Todd Elstrom	2nd game	Brigham Young
1997	OG Chad Ward	3rd game	Nebraska
1987	OG Jeff Pahukoa	4th game	Pacific
1987	FS Eugene Burkhalter	4th game	Pacific
1976	DT Doug Martin	4th game	Minnesota

STRONG-LEGGED FROSH: Husky sophomore punter Derek McLaughlin had one of the best seasons ever by a Husky punter as a freshman in 2001. McLaughlin's punting average of 41.2 yards per punt ranked fifth all-time in school history. In Washington's 31-28 win over Cal, McLaughlin set a school record with a 74-yard punt. Of McLaughlin's 52 punts in 2001, 16 were downed inside the 20-yard line, and only two went for touchbacks. McLaughlin, a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints, is slated to go on a two-year mission following the 2002 season and should return for his junior year in 2005.

Season Punting Average

	No.	Yds.	Avg.
1. Skip Boyd (1973)	69	2964	43.0
2. Skip Boyd (1974)	57	2407	42.2
3. Jeff Partridge (1982)	65	2739	42.1
4. Thane Cleland (1986)	47	1938	41.2
5. Derek McLaughlin (2001)	52	2,144	41.2

EXPERIENCED O-LINE: Last year, the primary preseason concern for the Washington football team was inexperience on the offensive line. This year, that would seem to be one of the least of the coaches' concerns. Last year, only senior center Kyle Benn entered the year with any significant game experience. This year, he's the only regular not returning. Four starters – senior Elliott Zajac, juniors Todd Bachert and Nick Newton and sophomore Khalif Barnes – all return to the line (Zajac is currently out of the lineup with a leg fracture, but is likely to return by October). All but Newton started all 12 games last season (Newton started 11). Aside from the four returning starters, the Huskies also have five other offensive linemen returning after having earned a letter last season: junior Jason Simonson and sophomores Aaron Butler (who started once in Newton's place), Ryan Brooks, Dan Dicks and Andre Reeves. So, in other words, the UW line returns four starters and a startling nine lettermen in 2002.

SAME GOES FOR ILBs: Last year, inside linebackers Ben Mahdavi and Jamaun Willis both started all 12 Husky games. While only Mahdavi, a senior this year, returns, Washington has remarkable depth at the position. Six lettermen, who have a combined 10 varsity letters to their credit, return for the 2002 season. Aside from three-time letterman Mahdavi, there are also juniors Marquis Cooper and Tyler Krambrink (both two-time lettermen; Krambrink also plays OLB) and sophomores Tim Galloway, Matt Lingley and Joe Lobendahn. While Mahdavi is a shoo-in to return to one starting spot, the battle for the other will be a dogfight. Lobendahn started the Michigan game, though Cooper led the team in tackles in the game with 11.

MAHDAVI PROVES WORTHY: Once a walkon, senior linebacker Ben Mahdavi emerged last year as one of the Huskies' top defensive players. The Mercer Island High product led the 2001 Washington team with 85 total tackles and with five sacks. At the first team meeting of the 2000 season, Husky coach Rick Neuheisel announced that Mahdavi had been awarded a scholarship. Mahdavi made his head coach look good in the season opener against Idaho when he came up with two of the Huskies' biggest plays. Midway through the second quarter he scooped up a fumble and raced 35 yards for a touchdown. Early in the fourth quarter he blocked a Vandal punt that UW recovered on the one-yard line and converted into a touchdown. A backup inside linebacker, Mahdavi also recorded seven tackles, then a career high, in that game. Mahdavi also has the distinction of having scored the first touchdown of the 1999 season as well when he fell on a fumbled punt in the endzone for a TD at Brigham Young in Neuheisel's UW coaching debut. Early in 2000, Mahdavi moved into a starting spot, compiling eight starts in 2000. He started all 11 games plus the Holiday Bowl in 2001 and enters the 2002 season as the Huskies' top defensive player in terms of career starts with 19 (not counting bowls). Mahdavi had originally signed a letter of intent at Utah, but transferred before the 1998 season.

PLAYER NOTES

KELLEY'S TRAVELS: A week after the 2001 Rose Bowl victory over Purdue, senior linebacker Anthony Kelley embarked on a trip to South Africa. Kelley, a regular on the defense the last three years and expected to start again in 2002, earned a fellowship to study in South Africa during the winter, 2001 quarter. A former partial academic qualifier, Kelley earned the team's Inspirational Academic Award at the 2000 postseason banquet and graduated last spring. By graduating, Kelley was granted an additional year of eligibility for the 2002 season. Kelley went to South Africa for a second time in early 2002, and upon returning to the United States, raised $25,000 to bring a troupe of grade-school-aged South African dancers to Seattle for six weeks over the summer. He was honored with the Carlson Leadership Award and also spoke at a ceremony at the UW in which Archbishop Desmond Tutu was rewarded with an honorary doctorate.

PARADE OF WIDEOUTS: Washington's wide receivers comprise one of the more unique gatherings of prep talent at a single position in recent years. Three Husky wideouts — senior Paul Arnold and sophomores Reggie Williams and Charles Frederick — are former Parade All-Americans, one of the nation's highest prep accolades. Arnold and Williams, meanwhile, were also named to USA Today's first-team All-America squad, while Frederick was a first-team selection by USA Today.com. Arnold earned the honors in 1998 as a tailback at Seattle's Kennedy High School, while Williams and Frederick were each honored as wide receivers following the 2000 season. Williams and Frederick were also touted by at least one publication in 2000 as the top prep wide receiver in the nation. Williams was No. 1 according to Prep Football Report and USA Today.com, while Frederick was the top selection of Student Sports magazine. Incidentally, Frederick also earned honorable mention All-American honors for basketball from USA Today in 1999.

E.T. BREAKS OUT: After spending last year primarily on return teams, sophomore receiver Charles Frederick finally got his chance to break out on offense Saturday at Michigan. Frederick, rated as one of the nation's top skill-position players while at Pope John II High in Florida, spent most of last season amongst the NCAA's leaders in punt returns, but never caught a pass. Saturday at Michigan, he made five catches for a team-high 88 yards. His 51-yard third-quarter touchdown reception, a spectacular catch between two Wolverines defenders, gave the Huskies their first lead of the game. Frederick also served as the Huskies' punt and kick returner.

PACIFIC GROOVE: From All-America center Bern Brostek, to linebacker Ink Aleaga to quarterback Marques Tuiasosopo, the Huskies have had a long tradition of outstanding players of Polynesian descent. The 2002 season is no exception, with 10 Pacific Islanders on the 2002 roster. The list includes five players who prepped in Hawaii — junior Francisco Tipoti (Honolulu, HI/McKinley HS), sophomore Joe Lobendahn (Honolulu, HI/Saint Louis HS), redshirt freshman William Kava (Kaneohe, HI/Iolani HS) and true freshmen Brandon Ala (Waianae, HI/Kamehameha HS) and Donny Mateaki (Honolulu, HI/Iolani HS). The remaining five are sophomores Tui Alailefaleula (Anchorage, AK/Bartlett HS), Junior Coffin (Bremerton, WA/Olympic HS) and Zach Tuiasosopo (Woodinville, WA/Woodinville HS), Manase Hopoi (Sacramento, CA/Valley HS) and redshirt freshman Tusi Sa'au (Seattle, WA/Rainier Beach). The 10 — of which seven are linemen and nine are freshmen or sophomores — are charged with upholding the tradition established by standouts such as Olin Kreutz, Siupeli Malamala, brothers Jeff and Shane Pahukoa, Mac Tuiaea and many others.

TIGHT END TRADITION: Several years ago, when Sports Illustrated ranked the top college programs all-time by position, Washington's tradition of outstanding tight ends was picked No. 1 at that spot. And for good reason — the Huskies' last six regular starters (and one backup) at the tight end position have all gone on to NFL success, dating all the way back to Aaron Pierce. Pierce started the majority of the 1990 and '91 seasons before being drafted by the New York Giants in 1992. Since Pierce, Mark Bruener (Pittsburgh, '95), Ernie Conwell (St. Louis, '96), Cam Cleland (New Orleans, '98), Jeremy Brigham (Oakland, '98), Reggie Davis (San Diego, '99) and Jerramy Stevens (Seattle, '02) all appeared in the NFL. Five of those seven remain in the NFL today, including four (Stevens, Brigham, Conwell and Bruener) with their original team. Of the group, four were selected in the first or second round, and two (Conwell, Bruener) have started in Super Bowls. This year, senior Kevin Ware will try and keep the streak alive. After notching only eight catches in his first three years total, Ware got off to an impressive start vs. Michigan, catching four passes for 38 yards and a touchdown.

REDSHIRTS RETURN: Five Huskies that missed either all or most of the 2001 season due to injuries are slated to return to the field in 2002. Three of those players — OLB Jafar Williams, CB Derrick Johnson and FS Jimmy Newell — are expected to start. Two others — TB Braxton Cleman and WR Justin Robbins — have seen significant starting action in past seasons. Williams missed 2001 with ankle and knee injuries while Johnson had a foot injury. Newell played in three games in 2001 before missing the rest of the season with a shoulder injury, earning a redshirt season. Cleman played in one game in 2001, but broke his collarbone in that game and got a redshirt year. Robbins had shoulder, knee and hamstring injuries in 2001 and played in only one game after starting nine as a true freshman in 2000. In the season opener vs. Michigan, Williams, Johnson and Newell all started. Cleman and Robbins both missed the game with injuries.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON: Perhaps the only true freshman that's expected to play this year, at least at this point, is cornerback and return man Nate Robinson. The diminutive (5-foot-9) Seattle native brings a great legacy with him to the UW as his father, Jacque Robinson, was an outstanding tailback for the Huskies in the early 1980s. The elder Robinson still ranks No. 7 on the UW career rushing list (2,300 yards) after finishing his career ranked No. 4. He led the Huskies in rushing in 1982 and 1984 and was a freshman when he was named MVP of the UW's 28-0 win over Iowa in the 1982 Rose Bowl. He capped his career by earning MVP honors in the 1985 Orange Bowl, a 28-17 win over Oklahoma. Nate, who also intends to play basketball at Washington, was the only Husky freshman to play at Michigan, starting on kick returns. Though he didn't get any time on defense, he's listed as the Huskies' fifth cornerback.

ELLIS' EXPLOITS: If only Kai Ellis were allowed to play all of his games against Michigan. The senior linebacker's two career matchups with the Wolverines have yielded the best performances of his Husky career. Last week, Ellis contributed to the Huskies' defensive effort in just about every way possible, notching a sack, a fumble recovery, an interception, a rush tackle-for-loss, and batting down a pass in Michigan's final series. The sack, fumble recovery and interception were each the first of Ellis' Husky career, while his two pass defenses doubled his previous career total. In last season's home opener, Ellis tormented the Wolverines to the tune of 13 tackles, including one tackle-for-loss. In between the two games, Ellis appeared in seven contests for Washington, totaling as many as five tackles just twice, and just once notching a tackle-for-loss.

PLAYER NOTES

ANDERSON'S LEG: Washington senior placekicker John Anderson enters his final collegiate season as one of the top candidates for the Lou Groza Award, which he also won as a high school. Anderson's resume began to build quickly in his freshman season of 1999. He converted 13 of 18 field goals and 34 of 35 PATs that year and led Washington in scoring with 73 points. Anderson began to make his mark when he booted a 50-yard field goal against Oregon State. That kick ended a 16-year stretch in which the Huskies had not recorded a 50-yard field goal. Anderson's boot was the longest by a UW kicker since Jeff Jaeger converted a 52-yard field goal in 1983 vs. Oregon. Jaeger was also a freshman that season. Since Jaeger's kick, the Huskies had made 224 field goals over the previous 17 seasons without making one from at least 50 yards. Anderson was two years old when Jaeger made the last 50-yard field goal. Anderson went on to prove that long boot was no fluke. He ended that season with three 50-yard field goals to his credit, including a 56-yarder at UCLA to tie the UW school record. That field goal was the longest by a Pac-10 kicker in 1999. It tied as the 14th longest in league history and it was the longest by a true freshman in conference history. His kick was the seventh longest in Pac-10 history since 1989, when use of a kicking tee was eliminated. Anderson has now accounted for three of the nine 50-yard field goals in UW history. When Anderson booted three 40-plus yard FGs vs. Stanford in 1999, it marked the first time a Husky kicker had converted three 40-yard field goals since Brandy Brownlee made four vs. Texas A&M in 1987. Additionally, as a freshman in 1999, Anderson became only the second true freshman in NCAA history (joining Texas A&M's Tony Franklin) to boot three 50-yard field goals in a single season.

ANDERSON'S BIG KICKS: When senior kicker John Anderson booted a game-ending, "walk-off" field goal from 32 yards out to win the USC game last Oct. 6, it marked the first time in his career that he's won a game with a field goal, no matter how much time was remaining. It also marked the first time since Chuck Nelson kicked a field goal to beat Stanford, 27-24, on Oct. 18, 1980, that the Huskies won a game on the final play. Anderson, however, repeated the feat three weeks later at Arizona State when he kicked a 30-yarder on the final play to beat Arizona State, 33-31.

POPE JOHN PAUL II PIPELINE: In 2002, the Washington roster includes three players from Pope John Paul II High School, which is located about 3,000 miles from Seattle in Boca Raton, Fla. So far, the remote high school has been very kind to the Huskies. In 1999, kicker John Anderson arrived in Seattle and became a first-team freshman All-American, booting three field goals of 50 or more yards in his first season and establishing himself as probably the best Husky placekicker in a decade or more. In 2000, tailback Rich Alexis first gained notoriety by rushing for a 50-yard touchdown against hometown foe Miami on the seventh carry of his career. Alexis would eventually become the starter and earned first-team freshman All-America after leading the Huskies with 738 yards on 118 carries, an average of 6.3 yards per carry, as well as with nine TDs. Last year, WR Charles Frederick got his chance, primarily as a returner. Frederick comes to Washington after earning prep first-team All-America status from several sources is No. 3 in the nation in punt returns.

NEW FAMILY TIES: The Huskies' latest set of incoming players, which will report for the start of fall practice next week, includes, as has become common, a number of players with some sort of tie or another to the Husky football program. Freshman tight end Jason Benn, for instance, just missed playing with his older brother Kyle, who graduated after last season after starting each of the last three seasons as the Husky center. Freshman cornerback Matt Fountaine wasn't nearly as close to playing on the same team as his older brother. Jamal Fountaine earned four letters (1990-93) as a defensive lineman at the UW before playing in the NFL for San Francisco, Carolina and Atlanta. Freshman DB Nate Robinson's father, Jacque, was a four-year letterman running back at Washington, leading the team in rushing in 1982 and 1984. The elder Robinson is the only man ever named the MVP of the Rose Bowl and the Orange Bowl and still ranks No. 7 on the UW career rushing list with 2,300 career yards. Freshman DB Kim Taylor is a cousin of current Husky Zach Tuiasosopo and former UW QB Marques Tuiasosopo. And, while not a connection to the UW, freshman offensive lineman Robin Kezirian is a cousin of current UCLA player Blane Kezirian.

OLD FAMILY TIES: Aside from the freshmen with the various family ties to former Huskies, the rest of the team includes its fair share of UW and football connections as well. Redshirt freshman safety Evan Benjamin has two connections — he is the son of former Seahawk Tony Benjamin and the younger brother of Paige Benjamin, a senior on the UW volleyball team. Redshirt freshman Will Conwell is the nephew of former UW tight end Ernie Conwell, now with the St. Louis Rams, while quarterback Casey Paus is the younger brother of UCLA QB Cory Paus. Redshirt freshman tight end Andy Heater's father is Husky recruiting coordinator and running backs coach Chuck Heater while RS-freshman running back John Gardenhire is the son of former Husky offensive lineman John Gardenhire, Sr., who lettered at the UW in 1980 and 1981. Junior safety Owen Biddle is the nephew of former Husky Greg Brooks while soph offensive lineman Aaron Butler is the younger brother of former Dawg linebacker Hillary Butler. Sophomore Dan Dicks' uncle, Norm, was a two-year letterman footballer before eventually becoming a U.S. congressman. Finally Zach Tuiasosopo is the younger brother of former Husky star Marques Tuiasosopo, as well as former All-Pac-10 volleyball player Leslie Tuiasosopo, who's now a Husky assistant volleyball coach.

The following scholarship players are no longer on the team: RayShon Dukes, Andre Reeves and Jordan Refett. The following players have changed positions (new position listed): defensive lineman Stanley Daniels, fullback Ty Eriks, offensive guard Tusi Sa'au, safety Jordan Slye. The following players have changed their uniform number (new number listed): 5 Sam Cunningham, 18 Matt Griffith, 6 Eddie Jackson, 88 Clayton Ramsey, 6 Nate Robinson, 8 Jordan Slye and 5 Scott White. Additionally, sophomore linebacker Joe Lobendahn would prefer to go by the name "Joe" (rather than "Joseph") and has stated that the correct pronunciation of his last name is "LOW-ben-dine".

PRESEASON PUNDITS: Washington has been fairly highly regarded in the various reputable preseason college football preview magazines, ranging from a national ranking as high as No. 6 (by Athlons) to No. 12 (Street & Smith's and Sporting News). The Huskies are picked to finish either first or second in each magazine. Here's a rundown of where the various magazines rated the UW, with national ranking, Pac-10 place and all-conference players (no Huskies earned preseason All-America consideration):

Magazine	Rank	Pac-10	Preseason All-Pac-10 Selections
Athlon's	No. 6	No. 1	R. Williams, Mahdavi, Alexander (kr)
Lindy's	No. 7	No. 1	R. Williams (1st; also off. MVP), Pickett (2nd), Anderson (2nd), Ellis (2nd), Mahdavi (2nd), McLaughlin (2nd)
Sporting News	No. 12	No. 2	R. Williams (1st), Mahdavi (1st), Ellis (1st), McLaughlin (2nd)
Street & Smith's	No. 12	No. 2	none

HUSKY HUDDLES: Once again in 2002, the UW will offer its own indoor tailgate party in the Dempsey Indoor Practice Facility before each home football game. Admission is free, though a buffet meal and beverages are also provided for $22 per person (with three alcoholic beverages), $17 per person (no alcoholic beverages) and $12 per child in advance ($25/$20/$15 at the door). The pre-game parties include big-screen television showings of other college football games, the Husky Band and Cheer Squad, the KJR-AM pregame radio show, door prizes, games and special Husky Legend appearances.

FREE STUFF: Several pre- and post-game giveaways are scheduled for home games at Husky Stadium this season. In the home opener vs. San Jose State Sept. 7, schedule magnets will be given away pre-game and schedule posters afterwards. The Cal game Oct. 5 will feature free pom-poms. Against UCLA Nov. 2, fans will receive free clappers pre-game and a team poster afterwards. Finally, in the home finale Nov. 9 vs. Oregon State, Husky fans will receive a free set of football trading cards.

FALL DRIVES: At three UW football games this fall, fans will be asked to bring along a charitable donation. At Oct. 12's game vs. California, KCPQ-TV will hold its annual toy drive (new, unwrapped). At the Nov. 2 homecoming game vs. UCLA, fans will be asked to bring a blanket for the UW Alumni Association's yearly blanket drive. Finally, the UW Police Department will hold its annual food drive Nov. 9 for the Oregon State game.

RANDOM NOTES: The 2002 season marks the 25th anniversary of Washington's 1977 team, which won the Pac-8 and was the first Husky team to go to the Rose Bowl since 1963 ... that '77 team was captained by, among others, Warren Moon and Blair Bush, who played a combined 31 seasons of NFL football ... the 1977 Huskies beat Michigan, 27-20, in the Rose Bowl ... after opening the season on the road at Michigan, the UW stays at home for five consecutive games, marking the first time since 1931 that a UW team has played five straight at Husky Stadium in a single season ... in the early part of the last century, it was relatively common for the UW to play much more than half of its games at home and five-game homestands were not rare. However, since the '31 season (the Huskies went 4-1-1 in a six-game home stretch that year), the Huskies have never played more than four in a row at home in any one season ... three times, however, the Huskies have stretched lengthy homestands over two seasons: the UW played its last three of 1969 and the first four of the 1970 season on Montlake and in 1973-74 and 1975-76, the Huskies played six straight home games over two seasons ... last season, Washington led the Pac-10 in attendance for the 11th time in the last 12 seasons, averaging 72,469 fans per game ... not bad, considering that Washington has a smaller capacity than five of 10 conference schools (Arizona State, California, Stanford, UCLA and USC) ... the 2002 Husky schedule includes a quirk that sees the Dawgs close out the regular season against its three Northwest Pac-10 rivals: Oregon State, Oregon and Washington State (in that order) ... the Huskies have played the other three Northwest teams in order (at the end or any other part of the season) since 1914, when Washington's seven-game schedule finished out in the same order as this year's ... the UW also played the three rivals in order in the 1908, 1911 and 1912 seasons ... speaking of ancient Husky history, this tidbit from the 2002 NCAA Record Book, which lists the best coaching career starts (in terms of winning percentage), year by year (for example, Michigan's Fielding Yost had the winningest first 29 years of a college coaching career in history) ... Washington legend Gilmour Dobie, who started out at North Dakota State and never lost a game in his nine seasons in at the UW (1908-16) before going on to coach at Navy, Cornell and Boston College, has the winningest start ever over every number of years from four through 28, as well as 30 ... Dobie retired from B.C. with a career record of 180-45-15 (.781).
